- Turn this in.

Honors

February 26, 2016

Learning target(s): I can analyze poetry.

Agenda:

- 1. Poetry recitations
- 2. Poetry Groups, Part I
- 3. Poetry Groups, Part II

Homework:

- 1. Recitation self-assessment!
- 2. Review theory terms

Tally

- If you are keeping a daily record of anything (participation, being prepared, listening, not falling asleep, etc.), remember to make a note of today's successes.

Poetry Groups, Part I

- 1. What happens? What questions do you have? Help each other.
- 2. What is the tone of the piece? Where, if anywhere, does it shift? Back up your answers with evidence (diction, imagery, details, overall language, syntax). Look at the poem closely, line-by-line. Remember how closely the essays analyzed the poems we read? Be observant.
- 3. What is the theme or message? Give a full sentence. A theme is a message about life, or love, or relationships, or pride, or whatever.

Poetry Groups, Part II

- Everyone should have read all 3 poems. Don't waste time summarizing yours for your peers.
- Instead, tell each other about the tone and the theme of your poem.
- What finer details did your first group discuss?
- Keep your reports concise but informative.

Group Quiz

- 1. When repressed memories or desires sneak out in some way (dreams, physical ailments, saying the wrong word, mental blocks): _____
- 2. There is a song called, “I Have a Crush on Daddy.” This represents the ____ .
- 3. Father Knows Best is an old TV show demonstrating what idea?
- 4. Tarzan and George of the Jungle grew up without a human society. Their ___ is predictably stronger than their superego.
- 5. The femme fatale might attract the attention of which two literary theories? Why?
- 6. The mean male boss and the poor male worker might attract the attention of which two literary theories? Why?

Theory Writing, due Tuesday

- 1. Pick a movie or story you know well.
- 2. Analyze it using the three theories. You won't use all the terms, but you should feature 1-3 concepts in depth.
- 3. If you cannot make all 3 theories fit 1 movie, pick no more than 3 movies total.
- 4. You've read several essays analyzing poems. I don't expect the research or the same length or level, but let them be your guide. Look closely at details, scenes, characters, relationships.
- 5. If done in adequate depth, this will probably be a page and a half, single spaced (handwritten).
- 6. Skip the introduction and conclusion – just give me 3 separate answers, about ½ page each or longer.

No Cell Phones!

- Bell Ringer English:
- On the piece of paper, explain the religious symbolism of the Simon scenes. Also tell me what you think Jack represents in a political allegory.
- This is not a quiz. However, you may earn a blue stegosaurus stamp.... Do your best! Be specific.

CP English 11 February 26, 2016

Learning target(s): I can analyze a novel on different symbolic levels.

Agenda:

- 1. Religious Allegory
- 2. Political Allegory
- 3. Psychological Allegory
- 4. Pathetic Fallacy

Homework:

- Chapter 10 due Monday

Tally

- If you are keeping a daily record of anything (participation, being prepared, listening, not falling asleep, etc.), remember to make a note of today's successes.

Religious Allegory

- Re-read the beginning of the chapter.
- Blood, buffets, walking uphill and falling, coming to the place of the skull.... Golding's description of Simon's short journey imitates what Biblical scene?
- Re-read the end of the chapter.
- What happens to Simon? Who is responsible? How does this tie in with the religious symbolism? What will the consequences be? How does this fit in with what the Lord of the Flies says at the end of Chapter 8?

Political Allegory

- 1. How does Jack run his tribe? How is he dressed? How do the boys treat him?
- 2. If Ralph and the conch shell are democracy, what is Jack?
- 3. Connect these two groups to the Cold War.
- 4. Update your triangle of conflict.

Psychological Allegory

- If we read the party scene as the conflict of the id and the superego, which wins?
- What is Golding trying to show us about humankind? Is this book more of a warning about Communist dictatorships or human nature? (Is this about politics or psychology?) Explain.

Pathetic Fallacy

- Nature, usually weather, imitating human emotion
- Scarlett is confused and feels emotionally lost as she runs home in the fog in Gone with the Wind.
- There are dark clouds over one team's dugout and sunshine over the other dugout in a scene in The Natural.
- In this chapter, what is the weather like? How is this symbolic? The storm coincides with what action?
